

Richard Burbidge helps make a house a home for Housestyle Countrywide

CASE STUDY

Property development company, Housestyle Countrywide, based in Warwickshire, carefully designs all its properties with space and natural light in mind, maximising on these areas to help create beautiful, sustainable homes, located in the most sought after locations across the country.

Since its launch in 2011, the build quality, flair and individuality of Housestyle's homes have seen its properties commended in numerous awards, including winning the top five star award for 'Best Residential Property in Warwickshire' for its Spring Barn development, and most notably recognised at the 'International Property Awards' for its Clarendon Mews project.

As part of the Clarendon Mews project, located in the highly sought-after area of Leamington Spa, the Richard Burbidge team were brought on board to provide its Fusion Glass stairparts to help bring the feeling of light and space into the hallway area.

Whilst not only providing a high quality, design conscious stairparts solution for the Clarendon Mews project, the technical team at Richard Burbidge were also able to support Housestyle with additional site visits and technical lists, highlighting its commitment to providing a seamless experience for its customers.

Since the success of the initial Clarendon Mews project, Richard Burbidge has continued to facilitate projects with Housestyle on a regular basis, and since then has provided its Immix Glass stairpart range to a wide range of developments, most notably the Bishops Acre, Farriers Way, Spring Acre and The Limes projects in the surrounding Midlands area.

"We are thrilled with the final look of the Richard Burbidge stairparts selected. Our main aim is to encourage the feeling of space, and the glass panelled stairparts have really helped to boost this. We wouldn't hesitate to recommend the Richard Burbidge team."
